The Land Rover Series I, II, and III, or simply the Land Rover, are compact British off-road vehicles produced by the Rover Company since 1948 and later by British Leyland.

From the seller’s description, this is a rare 1959 Land Rover Series II that has been structurally restored and functions perfectly. The standard 2.25 litre engine starts effortlessly, runs cool, has been regularly serviced, and has current NYS inspection through September 2015.

The Land Rover Series II was launched 10 years after the appearance of the original car and was an exercise in improving the product without changing its intrinsic appeal, which was a good thing as a decade after its launch, the Land Rover was still proving to be hugely popular.

After the original Land Rover conquered the globe and set out its stall as a truly iconic vehicle, the second generation arrived in 1958 sporting fewer sharp edges and numerous engineering upgrades. It proved to be a winning formula with record sales figures and improved dependability.
